> SWATOW. [FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

4th November.

Last night the largest fire that has probably ever occurred in Swatow laid a great part of the native town in ashes. It broke out about 6 p.m., in a paper shop, and was caused, it is said, by the bursting of a kerosine oil lamp. Three streets containing several hundred houses—the latest estimate is eight hundred-were burned down played first class cricket for his 53, and Pedler and an immense amount of property destroyed. What could be carried off in time was stored in that the building was consumed. This is the Canton Guild-house, which itself had a narhave lost them the match.

PEKING.

We have been having remarkably warm westher for October, and on Sunday, the 16th, we had much thunder, lightning and rain. It rained heavily also once or twice during the night. The Chinese imagine that thunder in autumn forebodes some calamity. On the previous day a large crowd had collected at the Front Gate, gazing at the top of the inside gate, over which is a building about 100 feet high. They believed they saw smoke issuing from the tail of one of the Show-t'ow which adorn the ends of the ridge of most Chinese temples, palaces and large buildings. At first it was supposed to be dust, but on close examination it was declared to be real smoke. It was expected that the gate would take fire. About a quarter of a century ago a similar

When the builiffs advanced with a crow bar to force an entrance, boiling water was thrown in their faces and upon their heads. When the door was finally smashed, an idiot boy dashed out and violently attacked the bailiffs. The sight roused the crowd, who began, an attack upon the officers, but were restricted by Father Macaddan, the parish priest. Holes were broken on the sides of the house, but again an entrance was prevented by the use of boiling water, while the crowd cheered lustily. Later the gable fell, carrying with it part of the roof defiance, and hurled stones at the police. By desperate rush the officers now succeeded in forcing an entrance and dragging out Mr. Gallagher, a son in law of the widow. He wore only a shirt and trousers, and his wife, who was , brought out with him, was clad only in, her under garments.
